Rental Dewatering Solutions

The decision of whether to rent or buy your dewatering equipment has serious implications, both for immediate capex expenditure and for long-term cost of ownership. There are certainly instances in which buying the required dewatering equipment outright, instead of renting it, makes the most logistical and financial sense.

However, for many companies, renting equipment rather than buying offers quite a few major advantages that can be beneficial. For companies facilitating a wide spectrum of industrial projects with varying de-watering needs, or those companies with sporadic need for de-watering equipment, leasing of the equipment may be the answer.

Case study for 40 HP submersible pump
